Snow extends school year

Districts in region add more days to calendars

by Lilly Adkins
 ASSOCIATE EDITOR

Students in the Big Sandy region will find themselves sitting behind their school desks a little longer this year due to the inclement weather that forced their schools to close for numerous days since January.

Kentucky requires school districts to be in session for a total of 1,062 hours and 170 days, and school districts across the region continue to revise their calendars to accommodate the requirement due to the icy and snowy conditions that have cancelled classes the last two months.

Lawrence County School Superintendent Mike Armstrong said there are no allotted days other than a school district must be finished with school by June 30 of each calendar year.

"In the event that circumstances dictate, a board of education may amend their school calendar with KDE approval, however an amended school calendar must include a minimum of 1,062 hours and 170 six-hour days," Armstrong said. "The last day of school has yet to be determined, we may still miss some school. The original last day in our 2013-2014 calendar was May 9."

Armstrong said that if there are more days missed due to inclement weather, the Lawrence County school board will amend the school calendar.

"We will also be watching for some relief from the Kentucky Department of Education," Armstrong said. "They have already shared their intent to have the legislature grant the Commissioner of Education the prerogative to allow school districts to claim 10 disaster days, provided the district has already made up 20 days."

In Martin County, students have only gone to school seven days since Christmas break due to the weather, having lost 21 days as of Tuesday.

Martin County started school late last fall due to structural problems at Sheldon Clark High School. The district consolidated the two middle schools and then moved the high school to what was previously the Inez Middle School. The school startup date was changed from Aug. 7 to Aug. 23, 2013.

In an effort to make up as many days as possible, the district converted Aug. 30, 2013, into a school day, although it originally was to have been part of a four-day Labor Day weekend; and converted Oct. 3 and Oct. 4, 2013,

Coal jobs, production dropped in 2013

by Tony Fyffe
 BSN MANAGING EDITOR

FRANKFORT — Not surprisingly, coal production and coal jobs in Eastern Kentucky decreased in 2013, according to a report issued last week.

The Kentucky Quarterly Coal Report says coal production in the 20-county Eastern Kentucky region dropped last year by 19.2 percent to 39.9 million tons, including 51 percent from surface mines and 49 percent from underground mines.

The decrease in production resulted in the loss of 2,232 jobs in 2013, a drop of 23.4 percent from the previous year, the report shows.

Production in Pike County, the region's top coal producer, was down by 16.9 percent last year. The county produced 10,866,320 tons in 2013, according to the report.

Martin County, the region's fourth largest coal producer, saw a 16.7 percent decrease in production last year, producing 2,987,669 tons.

Floyd County's coal production dropped by 1.2 percent to 2,419,580 tons, the report shows.

Lawrence and Johnson counties, however, experienced a rise in coal production last year, the report indicates.

Lawrence County produced 643,970 tons, an increase of 170.6 percent, while Johnson County produced 414,912 tons, an increase of

Sentencing documents filed in Kline's federal drug case

by Tony Fyffe
 BSN MANAGING EDITOR

PIKEVILLE — Attorneys for a Johnson County man who pleaded guilty in 2013 to federal drug and firearms charges filed memorandums last week in anticipation of his scheduled sentencing next month.

John Thomas Kline's lawyers filed separate documents Feb. 5 to make requests to U.S. District Judge Amul R. Thapar concerning Kline's sentence, which will be handed down March 11.

Kline, 43, of West Van Lear, who had announced in 2013 his intention to run for Johnson County sheriff this year, pleaded guilty in December to two counts of a 12-count indictment issued in August, admitting that he distributed a quantity of pills containing oxycodone earlier this year and doing so while he carried a firearm.

The plea was the result of an agreement with federal prosecutors.

Defense attorney W. Sidney Trivette said in House approves scholarship

FRANKFORT — Students from Kentucky coal counties who are trying to complete their bachelor's degree would have access to the state's Coal County College Completion Scholarship program under a bill that passed the House Monday 92-0.

House Bill 2, sponsored by House Speaker Greg Stumbo, D-Prestonsburg, and Rep. Leslie Combs, D-Pikeville, would expand and put into law the KCCCC pilot program implemented by the executive branch for nine Eastern Kentucky counties in 2012. The scholarships would be expanded to students in the state's 34 coal counties in both Eastern and Western Kentucky under HB 2.

"Students in these counties are going to college," said Combs. "They're going to college, and most of them are going away to college, but they are not completing their baccalaureate degree. What we've proven through the pilot program (is) that indeed, if they stay at home, and they go to one of those institutions closer to home, they are more likely to complete that baccalaureate degree."

In order to qualify for a scholarship under HB 2, a student would have to be at least a one-year resident of a coal-producing county, have earned at least 60 credit hours toward a four-year degree, and be enrolled at an eligible college or university with at least half of their course load at the upper-division level. Most of the scholarships would go toward students attending postsecondary colleges or universities in coal counties; only five degree burglary; possession of burglary tools; unlawful possession of meth precursors; third-degree possession of a controlled substance; second-degree burglary; and second-degree arson.

He was also served with three active bench warrants issued in Boyd and Martin counties.

According to one of the arrest reports, Kentucky State Police responded to a burglary at a residence in Johnson County and while en route received a call of a male subject lying in the middle of the roadway on Ky. 2381.

The victim was at the scene and advised that his tools and a two-wheel dolly had been stolen out of his garage, the report said. The items were laying in a ditch just up the road from where Blair was lying, according to the report.

KSP Trooper M. Haney said in his report that he ran Blair's Social Security number and learned that there were three active warrants for his arrest.

Haney located a flashlight, a screwdriver, a drill bit set, a wrench, pliers, Craftsman sockets, a Cub Cadet riding lawn mower key and a key to the victims's tool box, the report said.

All of the items were identified by the victim, and Haney also located several double and triple A batteries, a can of lighter fluid and 10 Sudafed tablets, which are ingredients for the manufacturing of methamphetamine.

Blair also had in his pocket a small black zippered case that had seven syringes and a spoon inside along with half a Suboxone, the report said.

Blair is also charged in another arrest report in a separate incident at Ky. 302 in Van Lear.

Haney said in his report that he received a call of a trailer that had caught on fire.

An air conditioner that was in the kitchen window had been kicked in and an individual had crawled into the residence through the window, the report said.

Homeowners advised in the report that nobody had been living in the residence and that the power had been turned off since November 2013, but that they still had some stuff boxed up inside the home.

The fire department advised that the house had been ransacked and that there was stuff thrown around everywhere, the report said.

During the investigation of a separate burglary in the same area, traffic control told the homeowners that Haney had arrested an individual for burglary and that he had a small makeup mirror on his person, the report said.

The homeowners met with Haney and were able to identify the purple mirror as their daughter's Christmas present that was a stocking stuffer, the report said.

The homeowners said the mirror was laying on a coffee table beside a recliner.

Blair was also served with an active bench warrant from Boyd County for failure to appear for charges in Boyd District Court including operating on a suspended or revoked operator's license, failure of non-owner operator to maintain required insurance, careless driving and no registration receipt.

Two active bench warrants were issued in Martin County for failure to appear in connection with felony charges of receiving stolen property under $10,000 and second-degree persistent felony offender.

Blair was transported to the Big Sandy Regional Detention Center in Johnson County.

KLINE: Attorneys seek fair sentence for Kline

his memorandum that supervised probation or a "minimum sentence" would be appropriate for Kline.

In a supplemental memorandum, his co-counsel, Jason Charles Reichenbach, requested a sentence no greater than 84 months, pursuant to Kline's plea deal.

The plea agreement says Kentucky State Police detectives met with a confidential informant (CI) July 5, 2013, for the purpose of making a controlled purchase of oxycodone from Kline.

"They equipped the CI with an audio recording device, conducted their own video surveillance and provided the CI $ 3,000 for the purchase of oxycodone from the Defendant," the plea agreement says. "The CI purchased 100 oxycodone pills from the Defendant on July 5, 2013, inside the CI's business in Johnson County, Kentucky. During the drug transaction the Defendant produced a Kel Tec 9 millimeter semiautomatic pistol from his pocket, unloaded it and handed it to the CI to examine. When the CI handed the firearm back to the Defendant, the Defendant reloaded the firearm and placed it back in his pocket. The Defendant was arrested outside of the business and found in possession of the buy money and a loaded 9 millimeter Kel Tec semiautomatic pistol."

A state search warrant was obtained for Kline's residence, where police found 17 firearms, 600 assorted Schedule IV controlled substances, 90 15-milligram oxycodone pills and 33 30-milligram oxycodone pills, the agreement says.

"The Defendant also sold an additional 116 oxycodone pills to various CIs on the dates listed in the Indictment," the agreement says. "The pills were sent to the Kentucky State Police Forensic Laboratory for analysis and determined to contain oxycodone, a Schedule II controlled substance."

The federal indictment charged Kline with distribution and possession with intent to distribute Oxycodone, Carisoprodol and Alprazolam; carrying a firearm during and in relation to drug trafficking; and possession of a firearm by an unlawful user of marijuana.

Kline told a confidential informant that he was one of the county's biggest drug dealers, according to court records.

Trivette described Kline as a "man of good health and substantial family ties" to Johnson County who is "unlike many individuals who come before this Court" because he "does not have a significant criminal history."

"Mr. Kline presents the Court with an unusual situation, what to do with an individual who is intelligent, hard working, and has the potential for rehabilitation but has committed such a serious act that affects so many individuals in the community."

Reichenbach said that Kline, who he said was declared "legally disabled" by the Social Security Administration, "accepts responsibility" for his actions and committed the crimes to "earn money to provide a better life for his large family," which includes his wife and four children.

FILM: Actors, extras sought for documentary

The film, directed by Michael Crisp, will feature "interviews with notable member of the Collins family, never-before-seen photographs, newly discovered film footage of the rescue attempts, and scripted re-enactments," the release said.

Crisp helmed "The Very Worst Thing," a 2010 documentary about the 1958 Floyd County school bus disaster that killed 27 people. The film premiered at the Mountain Arts Center in Prestonsburg in February 2010, and a revised "special edition" played at Paintsville's Sipp Theatre in December 2012.

Most of the available roles for "The Death of Floyd Collins" are for men between 21 and 65, the release said, and both male and female extras are needed.

DOCTOR: Bofill to plead guilty in federal drug case

attorney Marc S. Murphy, said the arraignment is for “purposes of entering a guilty plea.” The motion said Bofill also requests a telephone conference to schedule the arraignment.

Bofill was a doctor at the now-closed Care More Pain Management, which was owned by Tammy Cantrell and Shelby Lackey. All three were indicted in September 2012 on federal charges of conspiring to distribute and unlawfully dispense pain pills at the clinic.

Cantrell, 40, of Oil Springs, and Lackey, 50, of Williamsport, entered guilty pleas in April 2013 in U.S. District Court at Pikeville to conspiracy to distribute and unlawfully dispense oxycodone and to maintaining drug-involved premises. Their sentencing is pending.

Bofill was employed by Care More after another doctor, Richard Albert, left and opened his own business. Albert was later indicted on federal drug charges, pleaded guilty and was sentenced in June to 75 months in federal prison.

Approximately 60,000 Percocet pills were distributed by Bofill and Albert while they were employed at Care More, according to court documents.

Meanwhile, federal prosecutors filed a motion Monday in a case involving the owners of a former pain clinic in Floyd County.

In the court filing, Assistant U.S. Attorney Roger W. West seeks an extension of time to file motions for arraignment in the case against Ray Douglas Stapleton and Tina Stapleton, who owned Auto Accident and Health Care at Auxier.

“As grounds for this Motion, the undersigned submits that recent plea negotiations with the above Defendants have significantly changed the posture of this case,” West said in the motion.

“As such, it is anticipated that the United States and the above Defendants will resolve this matter without the necessity of a trial.”

West asks until the close of business Thursday, Feb. 13, to “complete the necessary pre-trial filing.”

The Stapletons, Dr. Stephen C. Army and Dr. Emmanuel Galang Acosta were named in a federal indictment issued in September 2012 charging them with conspiring to unlawfully dispense prescription drugs at Auto Accident and Health Care.

They are charged with illegally dispensing Oxycodone, Hydrocodone and Xanax from July 2011 through June 30, 2012.

The indictment alleges that the Stapletons operated Auto Accident and Health Care for the purpose of illegally distributing controlled substances.

The Stapletons, Army and Acosta initially pleaded not guilty to the charges.

originally scheduled for fall break, into school days. Oct. 11, 2013 was scheduled to be a professional learning day for teachers but was converted to a school day while four professional learning days were removed from the calendar and placed at the beginning of the school year during the SCHS moving period.

Also, five days for spring break were removed from the calendar and Memorial Day class will also be in session.

Martin County has been out of school for a total of 33 days as of Tuesday, with 21 due to the inclement weather.

The district has no breaks scheduled through the remainder of the year except for Election Day, when some school buildings are used for polling places.

Martin County was originally scheduled to be out of school by May 7, but the date has now been pushed back to June 11.

Martin County Director of Pupil Personnel, Kraig Grayson said that the school year will be extended by one day for every day missed to meet the requirement of 170 days.

The Kentucky Department of Education plans to ask lawmakers to file legislation that would allow the commissioner to grant up to 10 disaster days to school districts that have already missed and made up 20 days as a result of adverse weather.

In Floyd County, Superintendent Henry Webb said students in his district have missed 18 days so far due to inclement weather and that the school year has been extended to May 27.

“Our closing date has been altered and will continue to be altered with each day missed being added to the end of the year,” Webb said. “The state requires 170, six-hour days and June 30, is the latest date school can be extended.”

In Johnson County, Superintendent Steve Trimble said the district has missed 16 days and that they had originally planned for school to be out on May 8 for students and May 9 for teachers.

“If we don’t make up any of those days, we are looking at June 2 for students and June 3 for teachers as the last day of school,” Trimble said. “We have a board meeting on February 24, and between now and then we’ll have a better idea of what we are going to do. We’re probably one of the only schools in the state to take off March 17 for Academic Day, and I guess this is our third year, but if we needed to, we can add that back to make up a day and we can also look at spring break. Calamity days really wouldn’t help us much because we’d have to miss another four days. I doubt if we will have that many more snow days though, maybe a little in the morning or something, but I’d say that will be about it.”

COAL: Jobs, production down in 2013, report says

26.6 percent.

On the employment front, the 20-county region lost 2,232 coal jobs in 2013, a decrease of 23.4 percent from 2012.

Pike County lost 514 mine-related jobs in 2013, a decrease of 21.7 percent.

Martin County lost 77 mine jobs, down by 10.7 percent, and Floyd County lost 42 coal jobs, a decrease of 7.7 percent.

Mine employment increased in Lawrence and Johnson counties last year, with Lawrence County adding 62 jobs and Johnson County adding five.

Statewide, Kentucky coal mines produced 80.7 million tons last year, which is a decrease of 11.6 percent from the previous year. The total includes 54.6 million tons in underground mines, a drop of 6.4 percent, and 26.1 million tons in surface mines, a decrease of 20.8 percent.

The state lost a total of 2,326 mining jobs in 2013, a decrease of 16.5 percent. An estimated 11,781 people were employed at coal mines as of December 2013.

A total of 1,990 coal miners were laid off in 2013, including 1,436 underground miners and 554 surface miners, according to the report.

Coal preparation plants reduced employment by 234, while on-site office staff were reduced by 102, the report shows.

HOUSE: Coal scholarships OK’d

percent of total funds would be set aside for scholarships for students from coal counties who attend an approved program outside the coal regions.

A total of $4 million in multi-county coal severance funds for the scholarships is in the governor’s executive branch budget proposal, which has been filed for legislative consideration as HB 235 this legislative session.

HB 2 would also create student services grants for the state’s community and technical colleges located in the coal regions. Grant amounts would total $150,000 per institution per year.

The legislation now goes to the Senate for consideration.

Female deputy sworn in

by Lilly Adkins
ASSOCIATE EDITOR

INEZ – Martin County Sheriff Garmon Preece added a female to his list of special deputies on Monday, but he has plans to put her on the payroll as soon as she completes the course at the academy.

Markita Maynard, 22, the daughter of Deana Howell and Truman Maynard, said that she has thought about becoming an officer for years.

Maynard is currently enrolled in criminal justice courses and attends class two days a week, which will free her up to train for the new position.

Preece said he has wanted to have a female officer for a long time.

"I've been looking for a female since I took office, and I almost had one a few years ago, but she wound up getting injured," Preece said. "I swore her in as a special deputy, but plan on sending her for POPS testing as soon as I can find an opening, and in the meantime, she will be training. Today, I am taking her around and showing her different areas. During the time she is training, she will ride with a trained officer or with me."

Maynard said it is exciting to potentially become the first paid Martin County female deputy and that all she really wants to do is to work in the field and to serve and protect Martin County.

Preece said he thinks Maynard will be an asset to his office and looks forward to seeing her get the training she needs so she can get to work.

Martin Co. schools get grant

by Lilly Adkins
ASSOCIATE EDITOR

FRANKFORT – The Kentucky Association of Schools announced that Martin County is one of six school districts to be awarded a $40,000 grant to pilot a process and performance management program designed to one day save millions for school systems throughout Kentucky.

Nine additional districts were awarded $10,000 each for an audit of their current leadership processes to determine how best to improve performance in all processes.

The Kentucky Association of School Administrators (KASA) is partnering with the American Productivity and Quality Center (APQC) to train and implement process and performance management (PPM) techniques among the six school districts.

Funding for the grant is made possible by the Kentucky Department of Education (KDE).

"Because of the unique educational challenges currently before us, our sense of urgency to better prepare our students for success has never been greater. We have a window of opportunity to lay the groundwork for something really great for the future of our kids," Martin County Superintendent Steve Meadows said. "Incorporating a focused improvement initiative will build our capacity to re-think how we must deliver education for the future of Martin County."

The overall concept is to promote the more effective and efficient use of current resources at the local level, especially in areas such as administration and operations, and to leverage any net savings towards improving instruction in the classroom.

The six top tier winners will join the Kentucky Education North Star Community and field Community Project Action Teams to focus on specific issues defined by the school districts. The teams will be engaged for up to six months and will be fully trained on PPM methods, fully customized for each district.

Stop those ad trackers on your smartphones!

by Kim Komando

Kim Komando hosts the nation's largest talk radio show about consumer electronics, computers and the Internet.

The battle to maintain some semblance of privacy in our online lives is a classic one-step-forward, two-steps-back situation. Just when you start to feel you have a grasp of things, we get hit with new revelations about government spying.

The latest? How U.S. and British intelligent agencies are working to take advantage of the extraordinary information that online social-media sites are collecting on us.

So that's the latest two steps back. The latest one step forward deserves more notice.

Both Apple and Android have recently introduced new ways for advertisers to deliver targeted ads to us. This sounds like bad news, but the good part is that, given widespread consumer outrage on the issues, both companies have shown some spine and designed the new protocols both to keep the data anonymized and to make it easier for us to opt out from tracking.

Let's be honest. In the realities of the world we live in, we have to accept not just advertising but creative advertising. Most of the Internet is free; the price we pay for it is ads of one sort or another. But changing technology – and the advantage companies have over us when it comes to understanding the implications of technology – has created a situation that is both excessive and harmful.

And, further, we should note that the ad-tracking data the companies collect should be anonymous. They just know a certain random identifier buys cat food regularly, likes action movies, and visits a Baskin-Robbins a little too frequently – not that it's you, John W. Smith, doing it all.

That said, let's look at the new systems, and I'll tell you how to opt out.

Neither company goes out of its way to make this easier. (Details on the new Android ad tracker, incidentally, were broken by USA Today's Alistair Barr.) Removing them or resetting them takes a bit of work.

If you're an iPhone user, you need to go into Settings, then click Privacy, and then scroll all the way down to Advertising. You'll see a button labeled says, "Limit ad tracking." If it's not showing a green color, click the button so that it shows green. This will stop ad companies from tracking what you do with your phone and serving up targeted ads.

Right underneath that, incidentally, you'll see the "Reset Advertising Identifier." Clicking on that will zero out the anonymized identifier as relates your personal data. To trackers, you will then appear to be a new user.

Now let's go to Android. The new Google "AdID" system has similar intents – and is similarly difficult to find. Here, you don't go to your Android phone settings, but your Google Settings app.

Look for the Ads link. There, as with the iPhone, you'll be able both to reset your advertising ID and click on a box to "opt out of interest based ads."

Now let's go back to what I mentioned above. Most of the Internet is free; what's wrong with a little tracking? Because it's not just tracking. It's tracking and storing. And it's an amount of data that, as DIANA HALL, RIGHT, and Toufic Saad, professor of mathematics at Big Sandy Community and Technical College, chatted outside of his office in the Campbell Building on the Prestonsburg campus of Big Sandy Community and Technical College.

Program aids those returning to school

PRESTONSBURG — Diana Hall never thought she would become a statistic of the bad economy.

She spent nearly three decades at a local manufacturer, working her way up from a file clerk to human resources manager.

Then the rug was pulled out from under her in September 2011 when she was laid off.

"I watched the company go from 240 employees to 38 the day I was laid off," said Hall. "I felt so devastated. I was hopeless, and I wasn't sure what I would do."

Of all places Hall, 48, of Prestonsburg, thought she would land, college never crossed her mind. The mother of three thought her time had passed. In all reality, it was perfect timing.

She started researching jobs in the human resources field.

"I had the experience, but I lacked the education," she said. "I always wanted to go to school, and getting a better job was all the reason I needed to do so."

Through the help of the Kentucky Career Center in Prestonsburg, Hall participated in the Ready To Work program, a unique partnership between Big Sandy Community and Technical College (BSCTC) and the Cabinet for Health and Family Services.

"Participating in the program allowed me to manage the shock of returning to school," she said. "The staff at Big Sandy Community and Technical College made the big step of returning to school one I could manage."

Hall took advantage of the many programs designed to help students become successful at BSCTC, including the Center for Enrichment Resources (CER). The service provides academic assistance in all service areas, providing one-on-tutoring, small group tutoring and research assistance.

"The CER gave me the tools to know I could complete this journey," said Hall. "The thing I like about Big Sandy Community and Technical College is the resources that are available for students from all walks of life."

Hall now works part-time in the CER, assisting students on their journey towards a degree.

"It's so rewarding to help," said Hall, who will graduate in May with an associate in business administration with a management option and plans to pursue a four-year degree.

Ironically, Hall is pursuing her degree alongside her daughter, Sarah, who is a first-year nursing student at BSCTC.

"I'm so proud of my mom," Sarah Hall said. "She's a great example that it's never too late to go after what you want in life."

Diana Hall said she was happy to have an affordable option to a college education close to home.

"From the president down, you feel like you are a part of something at Big Sandy," she added. "If this college wasn't here, I'm not sure where I would be."

One of the biggest obstacles Hall had to overcome was completing college algebra. Professor Toufic Saad was instrumental in providing guidance in class and through office hours to help Hall succeed.

Saad said students like Hall prove that's it never too late to pursue your dreams.

"I'm extremely proud of where she has come and where she will go," Saad said. "She's a perfect example of how determination and perseverance pays off."

we've seen time and time again, can quickly begin to paint a compelling picture of every customer.

The implications are heavy. I'm sure you heard about the report last year of a man who called Target in a rage because his 16-year-old daughter was suddenly being served up with expectant-mother ads. He called the store back later to apologize — turned out his daughter was pregnant. The store's algorithms for figuring out such things had been spot on!

The storage of the data means that, at some point, someone can get to it. And as we recently read, intelligence agencies in the U.S. and Britain have begun to do just that for social-media sites. And when it comes to ad trackers, it's not too hard to imagine an enterprising behind-the-scenes government initiative to remove that anonymization.

In fact, they can barely control their glee about it. One of the PowerPoint slides recently released was headlined, "Golden Nugget!"

Imagine if the government passed a law that required all U.S. citizens to carry around GPS tracking devices and complete records of our buying and playing habits. That, I think you will agree, would be a hard sell, and provoke widespread protests. So why are we all essentially volunteering that information to companies and a government that might not be trusted to use it carefully and legally?

Library hosts book discussion

PAINTSVILLE — The book "The Spymistress: A Novel" by New York Times best-selling author Jennifer Chiaverini, will be discussed at the Johnson County Public Library Thursday, Feb. 27, at 6 p.m.

The book discussion is part of the library's series of programs commemorating the 150th anniversary of the Civil War and will be led by Christie Cook.

The book tells the story of Elizabeth Van Lew, who was born to slave-holding aristocracy in Richmond, Va. Van Lew was a paradox of her time. She was a Civil War heroine of military intelligence. When her native state seceded in April 1861, Van Lew's convictions compelled her to defy the New Confederate regime.

Pledging her loyalty to the Lincoln White House, her courage would never waver, even as her wartime actions threatened not only her reputation, but also her life.

The program is free and open to the public. Books are available for checkout at the main desk of the library. Refreshments will be served. For more information, call the library at 789-4355.

He was born March 31, 1935, in Louisa, the son of Luther and Hazel Williams. He served 37 years in the U.S. Navy (Regular and Reserve) and retired as a Captain. His special bond with the Navy began at age 17. At 19 he was a Tin Can sailor aboard the USS McCaffery DD860, one of his most cherished memories. In his non-military career he spent 29 years working for Miles Labs, retiring as Southern Regional Manager. Here, as with the Navy, he acquired many long-lasting friends. Tom was a graduate of University of North Florida, and lived in Jacksonville, Fla. for 41 years.

In 1998, he and his wife Shirley, of 57 years, moved to Winter Haven, Fla., enjoying traveling and other pursuits in this lovely city. Later years brought him a keen and exciting interest in Winter Haven 912, a passionate and hardworking group concerned about our America. Quickly these folks became close to Tom's heart.

In the win, Johnson Central tied a school record with the 2000 team for the most different players to hit a 3-point field goal in a single game (seven).

Racers' comeback bid at TSU falls short

NASHVILLE — Despite shooting 66.7 percent in the second half, it was not enough for the Murray State women's basketball team to overcome Tennessee State, falling 72-65, Monday night at the Gentry Center in Nashville.

The first half was slow for Murray State (8-14, 1-9), as it scored just 24 points in the frame. Despite the low output, the Racers kept pace with the Tigers (10-14, 7-4) for most of the first half, even leading, 20-19, with 5:44 to play. However, from that point Tennessee State went on a 17-4 run to take a 36-24 lead into the locker room at the break.

In the second, MSU found it stroke. After making just one 3-pointer in the first, Murray State sank six threes in the second, including three in the first six minutes. The Racers also improved their free throw shooting from the first second, going from 7-for-18 in the first to a perfect 7-for-7 in the second.

TSU led by as many as 18 in the game, including a 16-point lead with 6:21 left in the game. From the point, MSU outscored the Tigers by an 18-9 margin, but it wasn't enough as the Racers were only able to trim the deficit to as few as five.

Jessica Winfrey led Murray State on the night with 17 points, despite being held to a season-low two rebounds. Freshman Taylor Porter, a Lawrence County High School graduate, followed with 14 points, while Janssen Starks added 11. Nikia Edom led the Racers on the glass with six rebounds to go along with seven points.

Chelsea Hudson led Tennessee State with 16 points, while Jayda Johnson, Jemilah Leonard and Brianna Morrow followed with 11, 10 and 10, respectively.

On Saturday, the Racers will begin a string of three games over the span of five days, with all three to be played at The Bank. The home stand will begin with Eastern Illinois on Saturday, followed by SIU Edwardsville on Monday and Southeast Missouri on Wednesday.

DANIELS SIGNS WITH GUILFORD

PAINTSVILLE HIGH SCHOOL'S Lane Daniels signed last week with Guilford College to further his education and play football. Guilford College is a NCAA Division III in Greensboro, N.C. He is the son of Lance and Suzanne Daniels of Paintsville.

Dawgs roll past June Buchanan

PIPPA PASSES — Lawrence County head coach Josh Cook guided the Bulldogs into a matchup against this old school last weekend.

The Bulldogs visited former 14th Region powerhouse June Buchanan and didn't have any trouble getting past the host Crusaders, winning 72-38.

Lawrence County claimed its 17th win in the 2013-14 season, improving to 17-8 overall.

June Buchanan dropped to 6-17 overall with the loss, which was its second straight setback.

The Bulldogs shot 48.3 percent (29-of-60) from the field. Lawrence County was 3-of-17 from 3-point range.

The Bulldogs flourished at the foul line, shooting 84.6 percent (11-of-13).

Sophomore guard Robert Dalton led Lawrence County with a double-double, scoring 19 points and pulling down 10 rebounds, both game-highs.

Dalton was 9-of-16 from the field in the triumph.

Freshman guard/forward Timmy Dalton followed, finishing with 18 points. Accompanying the Daltons in double figures, sophomore guard Brandon Richardson added 11 points for the Bulldogs.

Lawrence County moved out in front early, quickly distancing itself from 14th Region member June Buchanan.

Grant Kiser scored eight points and Austin Chaffins chipped in six for the Bulldogs. Chaffins ranked as Lawrence County's second-leading rebounder, finishing with six rebounds.

Tanner Black and Josh Ratliff contributed four points apiece and Shawn Moore added two for the Bulldogs.

Lawrence County is scheduled to visit Pike County Central on Thursday night at 7:30 p.m. The Bulldogs have other regular-season games remaining with Allen Central (Friday, away), Belfry (Monday, home) and South Floyd (Feb. 20, away).
